Current Situation:

The Willard Fire is now 98% contained. Mop up operations continued yesterday, as crews worked to put out hotspots prior to the increased winds that were expected. A reconnaissance flight yesterday showed little smoke on the incident. Above normal temperatures and low humidities through Wednesday will keep crews monitoring the receptive fuels on the interior portions of the fire. Full containment of the Willard Fire is expected this evening.

Though many of the resources have been released from the fire to their home units, there are still personnel and equipment in the fire area. Please continue to drive safely.
